How to Find a Trustworthy Agency for Caregivers: Tips and Recommendations

By: Simpli.com

Finding a trustworthy agency for caregivers can be a daunting task. With so many options available, it's important to do your research and choose one that meets your specific needs. Here are some tips and recommendations on how to find the right agency for caregivers.

Research and Background Checks: Start by looking online for agencies in your area that specialize in caregiver services. Take the time to read reviews and testimonials from previous clients to get an idea of their reputation. Additionally, check if the agency is properly licensed and accredited.

Assess Your Needs: Before choosing an agency, it's important to assess your needs as well as those of the person who will be receiving care. Consider factors such as the type of care required, the frequency of care needed, and any specific requirements or preferences.

Interview Potential Caregivers: A reliable agency will allow you to interview potential caregivers before making a decision. Take advantage of this opportunity to ask important questions such as their experience in caregiving, qualifications, training programs attended, and whether they have undergone background checks or drug screenings.

Consider Cost and Payment Options: Cost is an important consideration when choosing an agency for caregivers. Different agencies may have varying fee structures, so it's essential to understand their pricing policies upfront. Inquire about any additional costs or fees that may be involved, such as transportation or emergency call-out charges. Additionally, discuss payment options with the agency.

To learn how the ADRC of the Lakeshore can help with finding a caregiver agency, along with additional caregiver resources, please reach out to our knowledgeable Family Caregiver Specialist.

Social Security Overpayment Overview

By the GWAAR Legal Services Team

Addressing a Social Security benefit overpayment promptly will help you avoid collection actions and harmful effects to your credit. The Social Security Administration (SSA) is required to inform you of adverse actions concerning your benefits. Know your rights and responsibilities to avoid consequences. Never ignore an SSA notice because it may put you at risk of losing your benefits.

What Is An Overpayment?

An overpayment occurs when the SSA pays you more money than you were entitled to. There are several reasons for overpayments. Sometimes, an error at the SSA results in someone being paid more or getting benefits they weren't entitled to. Other times, the error is the beneficiary's fault. They may not have reported a change that affects their benefit amount or made too much money. These are just a few examples of reasons overpayments occur. more information about lf you want overpayment, contact your local SSA field office (https://www.ssa.gov/locator/) and Disability Resource Center (ADRC).

What Can I Do About An Overpayment?

You have options when you receive an overpayment. You have appeal rights if you believe you don't owe the overpayment or think the amount is incorrect. You can request a reconsideration or waiver. You still have options if you know the overpayment is correct but can't repay it. You can request a payment reduction if you need one or establish a repayment plan with SSA. Contact your local SSA field office or ADRC for more information about your options.

What Happens If I Don't Repay An Overpayment?

If you don't repay your SSA overpayment, you could face negative consequences to your income, benefits, or credit. SSA can intercept your tax return, garnish wages, withhold future benefits, and report to credit bureaus. To avoid these actions, review notices from SSA and take action promptly. If you need help understanding your notice or your options, speak to your local SSA field office or ADRC.

You have the right to appeal adverse actions before they result in the loss of benefits, income, or a tax refund. Always read notices from SSA and act promptly if there is an error or adverse action. SSA notices can be confusing, so don't be afraid to call your local SSA field office or ADRC to ask for help understanding the notice and what your next steps should be.

History of the Social Security Act

August 14, 1935

In 1934, just after the peak of the Great Depression, more than 50% of older Americans lacked sufficient income to be self-supporting. While a few states in the US did have some form of old-age pension to assist with this, these programs were typically inadequate and ineffective at solving the epidemic of financial insecurity facing our elders. At best, 3% of the elderly were actually receiving benefits, and the average benefit for those who were receiving them was a mere $0.65/day ($15.36 in 2025 dollars). The average daily benefit today is $65.87.

Across the nation, many people came up with their own plans on how to handle the growing problem of elderly dependency. Some of the loudest and most popular ideas came from Huey Long with his Every Man A King idea; Francis E. Townsend and The Townsend Movement; Upton Sinclair (of The Jungle fame) and the EPIC, or End Poverty In California, plan; Robert Nobel and the interestingly named Ham & Eggs policy; Reverend Herbert S. Bigelow with The Bigelow Pension Plan; Arthur L. Johnson with the General Welfare Federation of America; and a particularly interesting movement called Technocracy, which can actually still be seen today.

Political leaders knew that something needed to happen on a national level to dissuade these "radical calls to action." The best option soon became clear to them: bring the old-age pension plans happening through the states up to the national government. In 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected president, and with him came a plan to solve the financial crisis that our elders were seeing: Social Insurance.

Social Insurance wasn't a new idea—it was first adopted in Germany in 1889 at the urging of Chancellor Otto van Bismarck, and had since spread to 34 countries in Europe. As opposed to welfare, which was looked down upon at the time due to being a "free handout" and "encouraging laziness," Social Insurance allowed for people to provide for their future financial security through a work-based, contributory system.

On August 14, 1935, Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act into law, and in 1937, the first Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) tax began to be collected. First, however, the daunting tax of enumeration had to happen – the Social Security Board worked with the Post Office to distribute and process applications for Social Security numbers. The first applications were distributed in November of 1936, and between November 1936 and January 1937, the Post Offices and the Social Security Board processed and distributed 30 million Social Security numbers.

Monthly Social Security payments began in 1940, with the first benefit being issued on January 31, 1940, to Mrs. Ida May Fuller of Vermont, who retired in November of 1939. Her first check was $22.54. Ida lived until she was 100 years old, passing away in 1975 and collecting a total of $22,888.92 in Social Security benefits throughout her lifetime!

There have been numerous amendments to the original Social Security Act that have made it into what it is today:

- In 1939, spousal and minor child benefits were added, called "dependents benefits", as well as survivor benefits. The 1939 amendments also increased benefit amounts, and accelerated the start of monthly payments, instead of lump-sum payments, to 1940.
- In 1950, the Social Security Board was abolished, and in its place the Social Security Administration was created. They also made a Cost of Living Allowance to the benefit amount for the first time. Prior to this, beneficiaries assumed that the amount on the first check was the amount they would receive forever.
- In 1956, benefits were given to disabled workers aged 50-64, and adult children with disabilities. Eligibility age for women was lowered to 62.
- In 1960, President Eisenhower signed a law amending the rules for disability: benefits were now allowed for adult workers of any age and their dependents. At this time, there were 559,000 people receiving disability benefits, averaging $80/month.
- In 1961, eligibility age for men was lowered to 62.
 The number of people receiving benefits nearly doubled from 1961-1969, from 742,000 to 1.7 million.
- In 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed in to law Medicare, granting health care coverage to almost all Americans over the age of 65.
- In the 1970s, Supplemental Security Income became a program of the Social Security Administration. Additionally, an automatic Cost of Living Allowance amendment was introduced.
- In the 1980s, the main focus of amendments was the disability program. In 1984, the Disability Benefits Reform Act was passed. Social Security benefits also began being taxed in 1983.

Today, 74,090,000 Americans receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income. The average monthly benefit for all types of beneficiaries is around $1,900.00. For more information on applying for Social Security, please visit https://www.ssa.gov/, or call 1-877-409-8430 (Manitowoc SSA Office) or 1-888-862-4811 (Green Bay/Kewaunee SSA Office).

The Importance of Program Contributions

Many times, the programs at the ADRC of the Lakeshore are advertised as "free, with a suggested contribution" of a certain amount of money. But what does this actually mean?

The ADRC of the Lakeshore is able to offer many of our programs at a very cheap, or even free, cost because of our funding structure—but it's important to know that our programs are not fully supported by federal or state funds, particularly our nutrition program. The grant money that we receive typically only covers 25% of the meals that we disperse on a daily basis.

A typical meal costs $11.50 to prepare, serve, package, and deliver. The current suggested contribution from our participants is $7.00 per meal, or 60%. The other 15% of the meal costs are hopefully covered through our amazing volunteers and community members who contribute to our programs.

Since the ADRC of the Lakeshore's start in 2006, we have been blessed in the fact that we've never had to initiate a waitlist for one of our critical programs. However, waitlists for critical services such as our Home Delivered Meals program could become a reality in the near future if we do not continue receiving the necessary contributions to make our programs thrive. Please help us to continue serving at our greatest capacity by contributing as you are able for the programs you are participating in.

Any amount of contribution is very important in reducing the chances of future waitlists. However, proper nutrition, social interaction, support groups, and wellness classes are all critical to your overall health and well-being. Please do not discontinue using our resources or joining our classes if you think that you cannot afford to contribute. Staff members at the ADRC are happy to work with anyone who is feeling a financial strain in general, and can assist with determining if there are any other resources available to you in our communities.

If you have any questions, comments, or concerns relating to the ADRC's need for contributions, please reach out the ADRC of the Lakeshore: 1-877-416-7083. Thank you for your support!

Online Buying and Selling Safety

By the GWAAR Legal Services Team

Selling unwanted items online on sites like Facebook, Craigslist, or eBay can be a great way to make some extra money. Similarly, buying gently used or second-hand items on these sites is a great way to save money and reduce the amount of stuff that ends up in landfills. While sites like these can be great for those reasons mentioned above, they can also attract scammers trying to steal your identity, your money, or both.

Tips to stay safe when buying or selling online:

- When listing an item for sale, do not include any personally identifiable information such as your phone number or home address in the listing. Similarly, when buying an item, do not respond to any suspicious request for personal information.
- Never respond to any requests for your phone number and never give out your phone number to anyone when attempting to buy or sell an item. Scammers can use your phone number to try to steal your identity. They may try to link your number with a Google voice account, so never respond to any requests for a Google voice code.
- Whether buying or selling, it is always best practice to meet up at a neutral location to make the exchange of the item, and if possible, bring another person with you to the meetup. Many police stations have parking lot areas specifically designated for this purpose. You could also meet outside somewhere that is likely to have cameras, such as a bank or library. This is especially important when buying or selling through sites like Craigslist that do not have buyer/seller profiles with reviews or other background information on individuals.

 Check buyer/seller profiles. With Facebook Marketplace, you can check a buyer or seller's profile and rating. You can also check the individual's Facebook profile. Some red flags would be if their profile was just recently created or if it lacked relevant information. If you check all of this information and the person checks out, for example if you have mutual friends in common and they have a good buyer/seller rating, it is probably okay to do a "porch pickup" for smaller, low-cost items. Although, it is still best to always meet up at a neutral location. With eBay and other sites like Mercari or Posh Mark, you are typically dealing with people who are not in your local area and who will be expected to ship any item you purchase. You will want to check buyer/ seller ratings and reviews before engaging in any transactions on those sites as well. Do not do business with someone who has zero or significant negative feedback.

- Some red flags to look for as a buyer on these sites would be deals that look too good to be true, or ads posted in multiple locations of the country. Also, if the person posting the items lives far away from the item location, that could be another red flag. When selling, be wary of any offers that are far more than the item is worth. And whether buying or selling, beware of anyone who asks to wire money. Only use legitimate payment sites such as Venmo, PayPal, or Zelle, and only engage in these transactions when you are sure that the transaction is legitimate.
- No matter how vigilant you are, it is still possible to be scammed or have your identity stolen. If this happens, you should first report the user to the commerce site such as eBay or Facebook. Then, you will want to report the scam to your local police department. Finally, you can report the scam or fraud to the Federal Trade Commission here: https://reportfraud.ftc.gov/ or to the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center here: https://www.ic3.gov/

Some of the items being collected are: lawn and garden fungicides, herbicides, insecticides, degreasers, transmission fluid, and household hazard chemicals such as turpentine, drain cleaner, oil-based paints, and varnishes. All Sharps (needles, syringes, or lancets that have been used or contaminated) must be in a Sharps or Sharps approved container. In addition, the following can be brought in: fire extinguishers, flares, old ammunition, eye glasses, hearing aids, and empty ink cartridges. For a fee of $2 each, fluorescent tubes can be brought in for disposal.

Ask I&A

"Ask I&A" provides our Information & Assistance Specialists' most commonly asked questions, and their answers. By sharing, we hope to help others struggling with the same questions.

Question: My child has a disability and will be turning 18 soon. What steps should I be taking and how does my child transition from children's services to adult services?

The ADRC of the Lakeshore can begin to work with individuals at age 17 years and 6 months. If the individual is enrolled in the Children's Long-Term Support (CLTS) Program through the county's Human Services Department, a referral will automatically be made to the ADRC via their care manager. If the individual is not enrolled in CLTS programming, their legal representative may contact the ADRC.

An ADRC Information and Assistance Specialist (I&A) will typically offer a home visit to discuss the adult programs, benefits, and resources available. The I&A may also administer the adult long-term functional screen to determine if the child is functionally eligible for the adult long-term care programs. If the child is eligible, the transition from children's services to adult services does not occur until at least the 18th birthday. However, working ahead helps to ensure a smoother transition. The I&A specialist will guide you through this process.

Another service offered at the ADRC is assistance applying for Social Security Disability benefits. The Disability Benefit Specialist (DBS) is able to file applications at age 18 years and one month. Either the individual or their legal representative must be the one contacting the ADRC to request assistance with this process. Appointments are scheduled with the DBS at either the Manitowoc or Kewaunee ADRC office locations.

There are many other considerations for your child as they transition into adulthood. Some of these include adult guardianship, employment, healthcare, public benefits, continuing education, housing, and more. The Wisconsin Department of Health Services has developed a comprehensive "Youth in Transition" booklet which can be provided to you by your local ADRC or Human Services care manager. This booklet goes in to detail on a range of topics related to the transition process. Your community may also offer outreach events for youth with disabilities. When in doubt, don't hesitate to contact the ADRC of the Lakeshore for more information!

NUTRITION EXCHANGE

We request that you include your name when submitting a question. All names will be kept confidential.

Eye Health & Nutrition

August is National Eye Exam Month. Vision impairment risk triples for people as they age from 65 to 85 and older. Age-related macular degeneration is the leading cause of vision loss in older people in the U.S. Age-related macular degeneration affects 2.5% of white Americans 50 and older and more than 14% of white Americans 80 and older, significantly more than people who are Black, Latino, or other races.

Age-related macular degeneration is impacted by genetics, but other controllable factors include smoking, physical activity, and nutrition. Americans typically do not eat enough of the foods and nutrients that can help to protect the eye. The following nutrients and antioxidants in particular help to protect eye health.

Lutein & Zeaxanthin: These antioxidants are naturally found in the retina of the eye and in fruits and vegetables. Sources include bok choy, broccoli, kale, spinach, orange peppers, blackberries, and kiwi fruit. 6 milligrams of lutein daily is shown to decrease the risk of age-related eye disease. This is the amount found in approximately 1 cup of cooked kale.

Vitamins A, C, and E: Eating more vitamins A, C, and E has shown to lower the risk of cataracts and age-related macular degeneration. Sources of vitamin A include sweet potatoes, spinach, carrots, cantaloupe, peppers, and mangoes. Source of vitamin C include citrus fruits, kiwi, strawberries, cantaloupe, tomatoes, broccoli, and peppers. Sources of vitamin E include sunflower seeds, almonds, hazelnuts, sunflower oil, and wheat germ.

Vitamin D: Research has shown an association between vitamin D deficiency and diabetic retinopathy. Research is also looking at how vitamin D may lower the risk of age-related macular degeneration. Sources include UV rays from the sun, supplements, fatty fish such as salmon and tuna, UV exposed mushrooms, egg yolks, and fortified milk.

Catechins: Drinking green tea has been shown to reduce the risk of age-related cataracts and glaucoma. Other sources of catechins include berries, cocoa, legumes, and nuts.

Zinc: Zinc is found in the retina of the eye. Zinc also helps vitamin A create specific pigments that protect your eye. Sources include oysters, crab, beef, pork, baked beans, and cashews.

By eating a balanced diet, you are likely getting many of these nutrients already. If you feel your diet is lacking, focus on including some of the foods listed in this article. As always, talk to your doctor before starting any supplements or if you have any concerns about your health.

Staff Spotlight: Wendy Hutterer, Director

How long have you worked for the ADRC? Why have you chosen this career path? 13.5 years. I love knowing that I'm part of a system meant to support, empower, and improve quality of life.

What is the best part of your job? Anything that allows me to interact with our customers, my team, and our community partners. I love being part of a community where people come together to serve the greater good. And I can't wait to teach Bingocize this fall!

What has been your most rewarding experience working with the ADRC of the Lakeshore? Any time I hear that our team has helped someone who was at the end of their rope and hopeless. To see the relief in someone's eyes as they offer heartfelt gratitude for the support they received. Knowing they were heard, that they matter, and that life is better because they entered the doors of the ADRC.

What might someone be surprised to know about you? I will forever be a kid at heart. I love that I have grandkids now that give me the opportunity to fully express that part of myself. Also, I've gone skydiving, rock climbing, parasailing, and been on a hot air balloon ride.

What is a secret talent no one knows about? Since it's a secret, I can't tell you!

Luxemburg Meal Site Volunteer

How did you become a volunteer with the ADRC of the Lakeshore? When I retired, I called Marge Buresh, who managed the meal site at the time, to see if she could use any volunteer help. She said certainly. I've been doing it ever since! Totally enjoying my time doing it.

What surprised you most about volunteering? How close you get to everyone.

What do you wish other people knew about volunteering with the ADRC? You feel very appreciated by the ADRC and the ones you serve.

If someone was hesitant to volunteer, what would you tell them? Check with the ADRC about all the areas you can do, and give one a try!
